Oral Interpretation of the Bible: How to read the Bible aloud

April 3, 10, 24 and May 1; 6:45pm-7:45pm in the JFO Room

Led by Ralph Thompson

Have you ever practiced reading the Bible out loud? A great deal of pleasure and understanding is gained when you read scripture aloud. Learn about the eight types of literary genres found in the Bible and how each genre presents a different challenge for the oral reader.

Participants will practice reading aloud various passages of the Old and New Testaments and reading these passages for both meaning and expression. Whether you are an experienced liturgist, thinking of becoming a liturgist or simply to enhance your personal enjoyment of scripture, this class will hopefully enhance your skills and delight your curiosity.
